

Update (4/4/22):

Dear CLP Members,

I will not be joining Chugach in Alaska for personal reasons. My last day at CLP will still be this Friday, April 8th. I will update you on my next great adventure.

March 9, 2022

Dear CLP Family,

I have submitted my resignation as the Chief Executive Officer and General Manager of Cooperative Light & Power, effective April 8, 2022. In the three-plus years since my tenure began, it has been a privilege and honor to work with one of the finest electric cooperatives in the nation. Cooperative Light & Power's 85-year legacy is even stronger today because of the dedicated and extraordinary employees all performing at the top of their profession.

I have accepted a position with Chugach Electric in Alaska as their CEO.

As I leave Cooperative Light & Power – Our Safety, Reliability, Environmental Stewardship, Rate Stability, and Member Approval are at their highest levels since I began. Cooperative Light & Power is on track for a very favorable future.

I will work towards an orderly and successful transition with the Board, new CEO/GM, the employees, and members over the next four weeks ending on April 8, 2022, to ensure Cooperative Light & Power continues its greatness without skipping a beat.

Thank you for the opportunity to work with all of the employees, Board, and members and lead this great cooperative.
